Occupational Safety & Health

WORKPLACE SAFETY & HEALTH ACT

It is now MANDATORY.

As of 1st September 2011, all workplaces in Singapore are required to comply with the Workplace Safety and Health Act (WSHA). The Act exacts hefty penalties on offenders who are negligent in carrying out their legal obligations.

Whether as an employer or employee, we should cultivate strong safety work practices in our workplaces. These not only safeguards our personal well-being, but also that of our families, colleagues, employers and other stakeholders. Therefore, employers are now legally-bound to take reasonable measures to ensure a safe work environment for their employees. This would require them to provide safety protective equipment, cultivate and sustain safe practices, and to conduct trainings for their employees. Employees, on the other hand, are to fully cooperate with their organisation's safety procedures, systems and practices.

With this WSH Act firmly in place, there is a strong compulsion by senior managements to ensure that they have good workplace safety and health programmes in place. This programme has to be adequate in both identifying risks, and in treating them. Also, to be effective in inculcating a safety-first culture in the organisation.

J^aBA can help you to seamlessly implement such a workplace safety and health risk management programme in your organisation. We do it effectively and at a low cost too. Call us right away if you need to implement a WSH programme, or alternatively, require a review to ensure your compliance with the WSH Act.
